...Port Hope...

THE bold cliffs, the maple clad headlands with the hills beyond, the sunny bay and glistening beach all unite in smiling an irresistible welcome to the visitor who approaches Port Hope from the lake. Nature has endowed this town with charms in plenty. Planted for the most part on the hill sides which rise in easy slopes from the banks of the Ganeraska its streets afford an endless variety of hill and dale. Trees in profusion lend the beauty and shade of their foliage, while glimpses of Lake Ontario or the surrounding country burst unawares on the delighted visitor at every turn. Here and there indeed are views of exquisite beauty, glorious visions of park and lake which enchant the eye with a rapture that never tires. But it is at "Idalia" and "Penryn" that nature presents her pictures of supreme loveliness; whether in the spring, when every shade of green lies below us and before us and around us in all its freshness and brilliancy, or when autumn crowns the hills with its glory of golden maples and the landscape is ablaze with every tint of orange and red. Few towns have better advantages for manufacturing purposes than Port Hope. The falls of the Ganeraska supply a considerable amount of water power and the facilities for shipment by rail and lake are such as few places can rival. But Port Hope excels in its claims as a residential town, and its attractions appeal to those who wish for a life of retirement from the turmoil and crowd of cities. Its golf links, fanned by cool lake breezes, are of surpassing beauty; its beach of fine, firm sand is admirably adapted for bathing; its water is of exceptional purity; while in all directions are points of interest easily reached by pleasant walks or drives. To visit the lakes lying to the north requires but a few miles of railway travel. The educational advantages which the town offers leave nothing to be desired. The famous Trinity College School, a magnificent structure recently rebuilt on a commanding position, near the Town, is attended by students from all parts of the world. The Public and High Schools have an excellent reputation, and a staff of teachers surpassed by none in Ontario.
